

Particle Counters & Sizers

Airborne particles represent a significant risk for human health.

Different particle counters and particle sizers are giving an accurate information about number of particles of certain size in the sampled media.

Above technology allows to design special instruments, like sizers to set properly fractions in inhaleable medical, (for pharmaceutical research) or powder "flowability" monitors important for dry paints in car industry, washing powders or food products.

